

Dear Jing Wang,

First and foremost, I want to thank you for your continued generosity, and the amazing opportunities you provide students at Stamps. As a student who is pushing and paying my own way through college, I can not stress enough how much your fund helps students like me realize their education to the fullest and experience the world. It has been a dream of mine to travel abroad for a long time, and seeing as I am going into my senior year of college I thought I might never get the opportunity. However, with the support of people as giving as yourself I am now going to get to realize my dreams and travel abroad to study in another country. Specifically, Ireland and the UK.

This summer I will be embarking on a trip to Ballyvaughan, Ireland to study global ecologies. During my time there I will be making art and designing materials meant to help in the conservation of our planet and hopefully creating a better world for the generations to follow us. This type of "active design" or design for change is something that I have been working on at Stamps and I am sure that my time abroad will not only help me to develop those skills further and work to create a better world, but also reframe my view of the world. As someone who has never traveled outside of the country I am anticipating being exposed to things I never knew existed and am excited to grow as a person through exposure to the world outside my doorstep.

I want to thank you again for your generosity, and let you know how important you are to the Stamps community. Providing opportunities for students in need is a huge task and every piece helps. Generosity like yours drives this school and inspires students to take on the same level of compassion that you show.

Thank you,
Nathanael Rieger
